THE OMAHA DAILY BEE

FOUNDED BY EDWARD ROSEWATER. VICTOR ROSEWATER, EDITOR.

The Bee Publishing Company, Proprietor, BEE BUILDING, FARNAM AND SEVENTEENTH. Entered at Omaha postoffice as second-class matter.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION. Daily and Sunday bec 15.00

Their without Sunday 50 400

Evening and Sunday 50 400

Evening without Sunday 50 400

Sunday Bee only 50 50 4,00

Send notice of change of address or complaints of irregularity in delivery to Omaha Bee, Circulation Department.

REMITTANCE.

Remit by draft, express or postal order. On'y twocent stamps received in payment of sraid accounts, Personal cheeks, except on Omaha and histern exchange, not accepted.

OFFICES.

Omaha-The Bee Building.
South Omaha-2318 N street.
Council Bluffs-14 North Main street.
Lincoln-St Little Building.
Chicago-901 Hearst Building.
New York-Room 108, 285 Fifth avenue.
St Louis-503 New Bank of Commerce.
Washington-725 Fourteeath St., N. W.

CORRESPONDENCE Address communications relating to news and editorial matter to Omnha Bee, Editorial Department.

MAY CIRCULATION.

54,751

State of Nebrasica County of Douglas, sa.

Dwight Williams, circulation manager of The Bre
Publishing company, being duly sworn, says that average daily circulation for the month of May, 1914, was 54,75;

DWIGHT WILLIAMS, Circulation Manager,
Subscribed in my presence and sworn to before me this 5th day of June 1914.

ROBERT HUNTER, Notary Public.

Subscribers leaving the city temporarily should have The Bee mailed to them. Address will be changed as often as requested.

Zacatecas is called the "key" to Mexico City. Well, Villa has it stuck in his pocket.

All right, Mr. President, bring on your business boom and come along with it as fast as you like.

If any Nebraska farmer is losing sleep these nights it must be from the noise of the corn agrowing.

The Black Hand society has not yet been charged with exploding those Chicago banks that have just collapsed.

What the colonel doubtless means is that were it not for the Perkins' cash register, "there wouldn't he no bull moose party."

With Mr. Brogan and Judge Reese both in the finals for chief justice of the Nebraska supreme court, the voters will have no chance to

A noted ball player has just married a congressman's daughter. But why shouldn't a congressmen's daughter look for further fame and aspire to higher honors?

Think hard, if you please, of that fine old day a winter or two ago, when the wind blew fiercely, the snow fell fast and the mercury slid down well below the zero mark.

Yet many good Americans hold to the belief that if the United States does not have the right unaided would not have been so unanimously conceded.

By official decree of the Postoffice department the knocking circulars on Omaha's credit, issued by "the man with the hammer," age not unmailable. Now watch him get out another

Still, we have no doubt the local iron worker implicated in the dynamite conspiracy much prefers his pardon to sharing the unique honors heaped upon his less fortunate colleagues at Kansas City.

Several early-return counties show up shrinkages in the total of property assessed for taxation. The State Board of Equalization will. probably have an opportunity this time to devote some of its attention elsewhere than to Omaha and Douglas county.

"Failure is Biggest of Kind in United States History," so our amiable democratic contemporary informs us, but at that it does not get front page space because it misfits with the semocratic scheme of curing business depression by solely psychological treatment.

How fortunate that those Virginia editors happened along at the White House at just that particular moment, otherwise he might have had to deliver that message for the country to a delegation of doctors, or tooth-pullers, or movie managers, or base ball presidents.

The Irish National league of this city has elected the following officers: President, M. D. Gannon: vice president, M as M. O'Brien; treasurer, Miss J. McCartney; financial secretary, E. F. Morearty, corresponding secretary, Moses O'Brien.

Rev. Edward G. Fowler of the Eighteenth street to stop over here either going or returning. Mathodist church and Miss Della Andrews, for several years a teacher in the public schools, were married by Rev. Maxfleid. Miss Laura Morse and Miss Hill, Frank Hill and Rev. C. W. Savidge were at-

The Canfield house is being overhauled by S. H. H. Clark, who recently purchased the property, and will be reopened by George Canfleld.

Mills Bhen has left with Max Meyer and brother's jowelry store a beautiful sliver laurel wreath to be engraved, which was presented to her by the citizons of Los Angeles

Policeman Nightingale has re-overed the three cincks which were atolen from the Dodge street school house last week.

The sensation of the day is the sensational trial of ex-City Marshal Gutherie for bribery, in which the samblers, who had to come across, are telling all about it.

The Sacred Heart school held its commencement yesterday with appropriate exercises, the operetta, The Corountien of the Rese," being the principal letting it lie on the table. feature participated in by the following young women: Misses C. Creighton, K. Creighton, H. Lorimay, R. Jones, E. Scherb, Sadie Nash, E. Davis, M. St. Clair, M. Bouers, J. Gregg, M. Dunphy, L. Del-Ione Wilhelm'ou Lowe, Mary Nash, Emma Creighton McNamara, Ida Pundt and Pauline Lowe.

Marvelously Foresighted or Desperately Reckless ?

The address of President Wilson promising the country the biggest boom in its history almost in the same breath with the announcement of the biggest mercantile failure, in the history of the country stamps him as either marvelously foresighted or desperately reckless as a prophet.

All of us have been eager to make ourselves believe with the president that existence of financial depression is "purely psychological," and to hope with him that with the assured prospect of bountiful crops it will soon pass in spite of the manifest distrust growing out of threatened democratic legislation.

What we would all like to believe, however, is unfortunately born more of hope than of experience. The president suggests that the revival will come as soon as congress completes administering to business the dose of new freedom which he has prescribed, for only then will business be certain that the treatment is fin-

Whether the diagnosis is correct or not, it is plain that the country does not like the system of treatment, Unless the improvement is prompt and marked, to avoid taking further disturbing concoctions, the voters will impatiently wait their opportunity to call in again the time-tried advisers and directors on whose success they can more confidently rely.

Psychology of Keeping Cool.

It is an old truth which Miss Margaret Wilson speaks when she says, "If you wear a smile hot weather doesn't bother you." It is sound as far as it goes, as everyone knows who has tried the two ways of meeting the sun's summer gaze, by smiling and frowning. Fret, fume. kick against the pricks of the weather-which one could not in any wise affect-and one feels the discomfort all the more.

The young woman's psychology of keeping cool-or, perhaps, we should say, keeping tolerably comfortable-is sound; sounder than her distinguished father's psychology of business conditions. If we are going in for sun-gazing, it is our notion that returning Old Sol's broad, burning smile, good-naturedly, will yield a good deal more, relatively, than trying to grin out of countenance this commercial eclipse that just now obscures the azure in the business sky.

Good Use of Warships.

A warship may serve no higher purpose than to avert war. Only as monitors of peace do they justify the outlay for their construction and maintenance. As a famous American president once said, "Speak softly, but carry the big stick." Evidence of the effectiveness of this policy comes to hand, if reports be true, in the pending dispute between Turkey and Greece. When Turkey threatened war, Greece invested in two big American battleships. Now comes the report that Turkey is not talking war for the present. Even the peace-at-any-cost advocates ought to approve of a strong navy if assured its existence would serve to ward off hostilities. That may not afford a vivid realization of the ultimate ideal, but neither does anything else at hand just now.

Of course, the possibility of a clash between Turkey and Greece is not entirely dissipated. Their differences are based on solid self-interests. Emboldened by the recovery of Adrianto run the canal for itself, its right to build it ople, Turkey longs to get back its great seaport. Salonica. Greece demands the Aegean islands, hers by right of history and race. So it remains to be seen how far Greece's purchase of modern battleships will serve in behalf of peace. Some authorities regard another Balkan outbreak imminent. But in the meantime the world has here a good object lesson of the restraining influence of adequate war strength.

Weak Spot in the Nonpartisan Law.

The weak spot in our nonpartisan election law seems so far to have escaped notice. It is the lack of means to fill vacancies on the ticket. In ordinary elections candidates run as representatives of political parties, and provision is made for supplying their places in the event that they drop out for any reason after nomination and before election. In the nonpartisan election, such as provided for by our Nebraska law, the candidates submit their names in the primary, endorsed merely by those who sign their petitions, and those receiving the highest number of primary votes in double the number of offices to be filled, go on the regular election ballot. Where there is but one place to be tilled, as this year, for county judge, for district judge, or for chief justice, that means that only two names go on the ballot, and the withdrawal or retirement of either of the candidates would necessarily insure the election of the one remaining, because it would be manifestly impossible for another name to be written in in sufficient numbers. Conditions may be pictured where such a contingency would be a positive public calamity. We can think of no way to avoid this danger and still preserve the nonpartisan system except by changing the law either to increase the number nominated or to fill such vacancies automatically with the next highest candidate in the primary,

The special rates which the railroads are making for the Panama exposition passengers from eastern cities are sure to tempt thousands to cross the continent next year. It is up to Omaha to do what is necessary to tempt them

The beauties of our primary law are exemplified again by a chameleon candidate who has filed for nomination for congress on four differ. ent party tickets at one and the same time. If there were any more political parties the gentleman would doubtless wear more labels.

To avoid misapprehension, let it be understood clearly that Senator Kenyon said he "upheld" President Wilson in his Mexican policy, but he did not say that he approved or endorsed the president's Mexican policy. Those are different and distinct propositions.

The Nebraska editors have referred the report of their committee on taxation to themselves individually "with leave to print." At any rate, this action is more polite than merely

If our foreign policy is "mushy amiability" since the Wilson administration took charge, language to fitly characterize our domestic policy will command a premium.

The Bee's Lefter Box

Betef contributions on timely topics invited. The Ree assumes no responsibility for opinions of correspondents. All letters subject to condensation by editor.

Villa's Financier. NORTH LOUP, Neb., June 36 .- To the Editor of The Bee: Suddenly Villa appeared upon the political horizon Mexico. Have you ever thought that in moving an army and supplying the same requires cash? Villa, since his rise and advancement to fame, has spent probably $50,000,000. Who is the invisible and un known financier? Mexico did not ful ish the money by taxation, because it was insolvent and without crops. Someone put up the cash to buy guns, ammunition, rations and pay the soldiers. What business can you think of that runs without credit and cash? Did the money come rom Uncle Sam? We have heard of noloans from him. What foreign power gave the cash? We have heard of none. The revolutions of Mexico have generally been financed from Wall street. How many of you would loan Villa a dollar, thinking he could serve you? We know that he has had and is now getting the cash. Did you ever stop to think that some great financial house has been secretly handing out that cash? Do you think that Wall street has become so generous of recent months, as to take pity on the poor Mexicans and civilise them? Would it not be more sensible to suppose that the $50,000,000 has been handed out in exchange for certain natural resources when Villa conquers the republic? But even that agreement with Villa would not be worth the paper on which it was written were there not an assurance that the United States should O.K. the obligation for the cash. Before the cash went to Villa someone guaranteed the services of the government to bind the obligation. We talk about saluting the flag at Vera Cruz and thereby involving the death of seventeen boys in honor of the nation. Who believes it? It was a guaranty of Villa's obligation to the unseen financier. The glittering generalities of Judge Stark elaborated in a democratic paper should fool no one. He was probably requested to do it. On how many occasions have we heard, "The ox knoweth his owner and the ass his master's crib?" Have you ever heard of Standard Oil? They also have it down in Mexico. But, how about dollar diplomacy? Not much dollar diplomacy with you little fellows who invested down there. But what about the editors who have been so liberal with space to Villa, in advertising that well known brand of oil?

Who Pays the Freight?

WALTER JOHNSON.

BRADSHAW, Neb., June 26.-To the Editor of The Bee: Under the caption Jones, He Pays the Freight," in today's Bee, gives the groundwork of who pays the freight a proper setting when it refers to Mr. Ultimate Consumer." Ofcourse Mr. Consumer pays the freight. The burden is on his shoulders and there is no law that can be enacted that will relieve him of that burden. He not only pays the freight, but he pays the producer; he pays the salary of every clerk; of every traveling salesman, and their traveling expenses; he pays the wages of every laborer in factory, shop or farm, and there is no earthly use for the Jones', Smiths' and their neighbors to get hilarious because the railroads have been stuck for some $12,000,000, because they, the consumers, have paid every dollar of the sum already and will never get a single cent of it back; and what of these seventeen railroads concerned in this ruling? Will they not, like Standard Oil company, devise some method whereby they can make it all back, with interest, in a few days?

Yes, "Mr. Ultimate Consumer," you are the fellow that pays the freight, no matter what your occupation may be. If you are a farmer you consume all the profits and much more of your own products. If you are a trade'sman it is the same with you, just as it is with every other vocation in life. Therefore, you see how beautifully and pleasantly we all go swimming, or rather, floating down the River of Time, together, soon to occupy six feet by two of our native soil or that of some foreign land, when our task of consuming will be at an end, but not till then; no matter whether, on the way, we have consumed much or little, the common heritage of "Earth to earth and dust to dust" ours, soon to be forgotten forever. Why do you beast, ye pitiful mortal man JOHN B. DEY.

An Official Statement. NEW YORK, June 20 .- To the Editor of the Bee.-Will you kindly give space to this statement issued under date of May

"In spite of denials to the contrary, the suffragettes continue to make ac cusations in public and private that financial support is given to this association by the liquor interests. I wish to make the following statement: "Ne'ther Miss Bronson nor any other speaker or organizer sent out by the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage has ever had salary or expenses paid by the saloon, liquor or brewing organizations or interests. The expense of salaries, traveling, office, publicity, publications, postage, and all other expenses are paid by funds raised from private individuals, every denor being known to me. Furthermore, neither the State Association nor the National Association has ever asked or received any financial support or assistance whatever from the no-called liquor interests." MRS. ARTHUR M. DODGE.

Needs Only Plenty of Rope, ELM CREEK, Neb., June 28.-To tae Editor of The Bee.-Let Wooster alone and he will convict himself. The struggling man has grasped the straw; he has discovered one of the attributes of God, "truth." stut don't let him forget that there are others, among which are refinement and decency of language. "Verily," Jonah has swallowed the whale.

F. M. BARNEY. Reason or Going Slow.

New York World. Suez canal shareholders complained because their usual 33 per cent dividend was not bigger. The competition of the Panama canal was suggested as a reason for going slow. The world geography of commerce is about to be changed.

> Inn't It Awfult Louisville Courier-Journal.

The proposition to compel men of wealth associated with the New Haven to make restitution to stockholders suggests a pre-cedent that will cause complications in the finance of the future.

In Other Lands

Beer Best Berlin Beverage.

Kaiser Wilhelm, to be sure, has adopted teetotalism and enjoined it on his sons as well as the students of German universities, with what degree of success we are not prepared to say. The kalser has gone so far as to tell his people that if they are to continue the world's profoundest thinkers, to lend in science, they must banish beer. It makes them logy, he says. But evidently the kalser's crusade is not complete. Berlin-not to mention other cities. towns, villages and hamlets of der faderland-still takes its beer now and then. It consumed 11,000,000 gallons of one brew alone last year. One of the largest Berlin breweries is turning out 22,000,000 gallons every twelve months and they are not emptying it in the streets. Many taverns have six brews of beer on their list. But there are some twenty varieties in all. By this statistical review it must not be gathered that drunkenness is common in Berlin. It is not. Heer drinking in Germany is not and never was synonymous with or closely related to drunkenness. But now, here is another bit of beer gossip and it makes the old citizens just a little melancholy to contemplate it: Weissbier, of which Berlin consumes 11,000,000 gallons annually, is little used in Germany outside of Berlin, where once, as the real Ber-Iln article, it reigned supreme. But Munich and other brewers are getting in their work of competition and in that city and elsewhere waiters have become so nunchalant of one's preferences as often to forget to ask him what brew ne will have; simply setting down a mug of beer as he pleases.

Where Society Lives in Huts.

Our friends, the Britons, have hit upon a new and novel fad, which may be expected soon to catch on in America, whose smart set seems just smart enough to keep close on the trall of some Europeans. This fad is for society folk to buy and occupy cottages of the poor. They take the humble but as it is-perhaps some peasant has been evicted from it-spruce it up a bit, but not so as to remove its rustic appearance convert a potato patch into an orchard. plant a few bulbs about and nestle down. Horace it was who said something about pale death with impartial knocking "at the hut of the poor and the palaces of kings." Now, one might think that this fad were a fine thing for the poor; that with the proceeds derived from the sale the poor might go and build a better house. No such impartiality. Often it is death of a different kind than mortal to him. Commodious homes are not being built for evicted tenants. No, it's only a fad for the rich ones, who are kept busy finding enough fads to go round.

Europe in the Grip of Food Problem.

All Europe is feeling the acute pains of the problem of food and its cost, but just now there is much agitation over England's situation in particular. Locally, the anxiety revolves around the failure of some crops this spring. Meat, both cattle and pigs-they do not say hogs in England-continues to rise. The English farmer is turning his mind toward the feasibility of going in more for live stock raising. He sees a great future in this, especially with the meat supply at home and in the Argentine diminishing in comparison with the demand. He sees Japan eating more meat than ever, and, being the good friend and ally of J. Bull, buying much of his meat from England. He feels sure it will pay him to finish up a steer or two every season, you know. Here is an interesting thing to note in connection with England's farm situation. Many of the farmers are not raising much hay because of the growing multiplicity of automobiles, which don't consume a vast amount of hay. Never thought of that? Industrial England as well as other industrial countries of Continental Europe have, however, to look more and more toward the pasteral countries for their food supplies and where more than the United States? But, alas, the United States is disappointing them just now, for though still somewhat of a world's bread basket, it has lapsed relatively in its labor of feeding all lands.

Hep, Hep, the Boys Are Marching. Sure, Ireland to building up its army. The Irish volunteers of the south and west now number 60,000 and have been duly recognised by the Ancient Order of Hibernians. They are looking further for official recognition by the nationalist parliamentary party in England, which to all practical purposes is now at hand. Joseph Devlin was supposed to be the original "good angel," so far as inspiration goes, of this movement, but now it is said that this assumption lacks warrant entirely; that the volunteer movement arose absolutely from a circle of obscure patriots, who had no connection with any political or public organization. This new army, as we say, now numbers 60,000 and is steadily growing. It is as yet nowhere near as large as the Ulster Volunteers, but it is already formidable. The Irishman of South and West Ireland is admittedly a soldierly fellow. And under the stress of present conditions he does not lack for the fervor or patriotism.

The Awakening of India.

Even though it be admitted that England has at last succeeded in its prolonged attempt to rouse India from its age-old sleep of ignorance and superstition to a sense of national being, on the face of returns the completion of the task is yet far off. For England has only thus far got India to see this much, that though it desire national power and authority, it knows of no better means of conquest than by assassination. India's eyes may be said only to have been barely opened. The vision of real modern government is a thing still of the future with it. enveloped as yet in the mists of a mirage it wots not of. And what wonder, considering the ancient conditions and then those imposed under the British rule in India, which calls for no comment here. It would be strange, indeed, to imagine that the Hindu or Mohammedan, the abject slave at best to caste could get any coherent idea of nationality through his experiences to date. Europe is talking a good deal of "India's smoldering revolt." and charges it up largely to the "Indian terrorists," who pursue anarchy in its most violent form under foreign inspiration. And there the theorizing stope, for it would be indelicate to attempt to fix the responsibility for this inspiration on any particular foreign country or

Twice Told Tales

Grammatical Error.

Little Wendell Holmes Emerson of Boston, was resting sedately with his book in the park shortly after' a picnic dinner. He had eaten too much. He knew perfectly well he had eaten too much and he was very much surprised and shocked at himself. He prayed fervently that no one would notice his condition.

Just then a kindly old lady appeared and sat down beside him. "Ah." thought Wendell, "I have sadly injured her cathetic sensibilities."

By this time the kind old lady was firmly settled. "My little boy," said she, "are you over eight?" It was wonderful to see how the young Mr. Emerson recovered his dignity. That a woman with such outlandish grainmar should dare to criticise him was unbelievable. "No, madam," said he, proudly, "1 have overeaten "-National Monthly.

All for Johnny.

Mrs. Briggs is so good-looking that Mr. Briggs seldom finds it in his heart to be angry with her, but was really cross when she returned from Florida. understand," he said, "that you passed yourself off for a widow while you were away. How about it?"

She admitted it. "You ought to be ashamed of yourself." said Briggs, "but I suppose you are not."

"Of course I am not," said Mrs. Briggs serenely "I only did it on Johany's account. I wanted him to have a good time, and he had it. You have no idea how kind all the man were to him."-N. Y. Times.

Editorial Viewpoint

Washington Post: "Man of the hour" is said to be needed in the Mexican policy. The idea! What we want is a combina-

Philadelphia Inquirer: Mr. Wilson, we inderstand, is to answer Roosevelt in the fall. If he will take a little advice he'll follow a well known warning and "do it

Houston Post: Another advantage of the climate is that during the next three months there is not one chance in 10,00 for a visitor in Houston to be frozen to Boston Transcript: After Secretary

Daniels has had his way and purchased the bunting for American flags in Great Britain, where will be have them made, in Germany or Japan? Louisville Courier-Journal: An iron puddler in Pottstown, Pa., who is 40 and whose wife is 38, has eighteen children. By the time he is fifty or sixty his family will be large enough to force upon his attention the cost of living. Philadelphia Ledger: The income tax collector's best joke is his insistence that the man who is discovered with an income large enough to assess a tax against must have his check certified if he pays that debt in the ordinary way.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: Secretary McAdoo will put an army of sleuths to work to discover where the income is, but they will probably only find where it isn't.

A psychological income cannot be made to pay continuous and properties of the income income cannot be made.

Millions of babes on the cradle roll. Babes and birds and buds all told: Each one a miracle of love. A foretaste on earth of the life above: And with such things near us who dare A psychological income cannot be made to pay anything but a psychological tax. That heaven is ever far away. and that's nothing.

SUNNY GEMS.

"Do you think you will be able to keep me out of jail?" he asked after he had made a full confession to his lawyer. "I may not be able to do that, but I can make the state spend a lot of money in putting you there. "Chicago Herald.

The idea! What we want is a combination of Methuseish and Job.

New York World: The report that they are using poker chips for currency at Tampico needs confirmation. There are no United States troops at Tampico.

"Did you find anything in that house?" asked the footpad.

"Nothing worth while." answered the burglar. "But it s bad luck to come away much dog and a lot of burglar alarm apparatus."—Washington Star.

Hemmandhaw—Is there any way to make the women dress decently?

Mrs. Hemmandhaw—Certainly there ia.

"Wall, what is it?"

"Kill off the men."—Youngstown Tele-

THE CRADLE ROLL.

A million babes on the cradle roll
Think of it, think of it, Oh my soul!
Think of the love and the tender care
That have nurtured those sweet childblossoms there;
Think of the love in those million eyes
Nor doubt that this world may be paradise.

Millions of cracies beneath the moon Are rocked and swayed by the winds of June;
Think of the millions of fledglings there Nursed and guarded with constant care;
Think of the mother love patient and wise wise Nor doubt there's a heaven beneath the skies.

Millions of cradles on bush and tree— Think of the beauty for you and me That bursts each year into radiant bloom Filling the air with sweet perfume; Think of the love that gave them birth, Nor doubt that God still controls the earth.

-BAYOLL NE TRELE

New advertisers particularly, need to get attention. People are more apt to remember an ad with a good cut.

We know how to make "striking illustrations." Every advertiser nowadays wants illustrations. We can save you a great deal of trouble and expense, too.

We have facilities for making the photographs, drawings, cuts and electrotypes, all under one roof, and the best workmanship in town in each department.

We have over 10,000 negatives of all sorts of subjects classified, and we can give you a print immediately of most any subject you can think of, and at a nominal

Bee Engraving Department, Bee Building, Omaha.

BEAUTIFUL ESTES PARK

The most typical of Colorado's mountain resorts-a region of canyons, glens, glaciers, crystal streams and placid lakes, a paradise of mountain air and wild flowers-a natural amphitheater of 150 square miles, with snow-capped panoramic barriers-is seventy miles northwest of Denver at the foot of Long's Peak. It is reached from Denver by the Burlington, two hours by rail to Lyons, thence two hours by auto alongside the St. Vrain River, or by the Colorado & Southern through Loveland, thence by auto through the wonderful gorge and canyons of the Big Thompson. Through tickets are interchangeable over the two routes. There are excellent hotels and lodges in the park, with rates from $12.00 a week and upwards, also many camps, ranches and cottages. During the season you can leave Omaha at 4:10 p. m. today and be in the park at noon tomorrow.

Burlington

$2450 Round Trip from Omaha Including Rail and Automobiles Ask for the Estes Park booklet, also "Colorado-Utah Handbook."

CITY TICKET OFFICE

1502 Farnam Street, Omaha, Neb.

Tel. D. 1238.

D. 3580

Genuine Old German Double Beer